edvanced before it was reached. The previous raves had shown the track to be like tinder, and those who had wagered that the mile would not be run better than 1-41 were blue, indeed, when the three-year-old láthes, with 122 pounds in the saddle, won the opening dash at five furlougs in 1:00%. The custom of taking the ladies to the paddock to view the horses between races is growing rapidly in this country, and hundreds of the fair sex crowded into the inclosure when the Metropolitan Handleap candidates appeared. Some of the young women were broad-shouldered and walked with the firm and resolute tread which bespoke a close acquintance with the golfing field. The broad-toed russes shoe was much in evidence, too, and some of the men who accompanied these young Amazons looked as though they could better assume the role of the protector. Hastings was much in favor, as the Belmont Stable bad just carried off the Juvenile Stakes with Firearm, and while the victor was walking shout under Hyland's eye the favorite for the Metropolitan was by no means neglected.

"Can you pull off the double event, John I' called an old acquaintance. The clever trainer shook his head, and smiling, said something about horse racing being a very uncertain business. If Hastings could not win it certainly would not be because of lack of condition. The brown four-year-old was sayinged as a giant. His muscles stood out in bunches like those of a prize fighter or an acrobat, and as the colt walked about they ran hither and thither like snakes beneath their glossy covering. There was a world of suppleness in them, and in watching their play one forgot that this coll is cursed with a bad pair of hind legs. Over yonder Gotham, the handsomest horse of the field, his chestnut coat now almost roan through the predominance of while hairs, was parading like a war horse, with the Keene three-year-old Voter, grown into a stocky, wear-and-tear coil, not twenty feet away. BIXTH RACE.

There was only a short delay at the post, and but one breakaway, which was spoiled by Roundsman not getting into motion before a start was secured. Voter had the advantage, with Casscopia, The Winner, and Roundsman in the rear. The red flag had scarcely cleaved the sir before Voter had opened up a gop of three lengths on his field, and after the three-year-old the field rushed spell-mell. Lamle, who some years ago was considered a very clever rider and who then found it hard to reduce below 107 pounds, but who can now get down to 97 pounds and even less, had the mount on the son of Friar's Balsam. He was substituted for Hamilton at the eleventh hour, when the black Archer could not do 104 pounds. Taking a nice hold of his mount, Lamle let Voter race through the backstretch, and before a furlong had been traversed the knowing division realized that it would be a case of "come and catch me." When the flag fell the scarlet jacket of Casscopia gleauned in the extreme rear division, but like a rocket the filly ran through her field. Here and there she threaded her way, passing in quick succession the topsawyers of the race. Hanwell had sprinted after Voter, who was striding away as though blessed with the speed of the wind. Heading the struggling ruck was Hastings, his handsome head and neck outstretched as he spurned the earth, but ride as Taral might he was losing ground and those three-year-olds in front appeared unbeatable. At Hastings's flank thundered Gotham. The Winner, Roundsman, Bir Walter, and Ben Eder. Semper Ego was bringing up the rear.

At the upper turn Lamle gave one hurried, restricted and took after the dook after the policy of the strength of the race.

thundered Gotham. The Winner, Roundsman, Bir Walter, and Ben Eder. Semper Ego was bringing up the rear.

At the upper turn Lamie gave one hurried, frightened look over his shoulder and took a steadying pull on Voter. All were driving behind him, and the lad now bent his energies toward nursing the coit to the goal. Hastings was beaten even at this point, and it was evident that danger would come from another quarter. Sloan had been riding a most patient race on The Winner and rating him perfectly; the son of Favor showed alongside Hastings as the field swung into the stretch. One stride and he was up to his throat, another and his head was in front, yet another and his lean head and neck were before those of Hastings. Taral went to the whip, but the catgut was ineffective and the rowels were brought into play. Still Hastings was hanging, and the ery arone:

"The favorite's done; Hastings is beaten."

into play. Still Hastings was based on the play. Still Hastings is beaten."

The favorite's done; Hastings is beaten."

And all this time Voter was bounding along like an antelope, his head we'l up, a good two lengths of gray earth yawned between him and Cassoopia, and as the stand with its thousands of shricking and gesticulating occupants rose to his view, becoming plainer and more distinct at every becoming plainer and more distinct at every yawned between him and Casseopia, and as the stand with its thousands of shricking and gesticulating occupants rose to his view, becoming plainer and more distinct at every stride, Lamie felt that victory was his. His face, naturally colorless, was as white as chalk, and his thin lips were closed tightly over his clinched teeth. It was the chance of a lifetime to regain the place he formerly occupied in the estimation of the racing public, and the lad seemed to realize it.

Little Powers, finding that Casseopia was not gaining on the leader at the free field, went to the whip, and the filly, breathless with her stern chase, faltered for the first time. Down the oentre of the track like a Nemesis bore The Winner, Sloane being far out over the shoulders of the four-year-old and as motionless as a statue. Man and horse seemed to understand each other thoroughly, and the ground fairly flew beneath the feet of the son of Favor. Casseopia was quickly vanquished, but not so Voter. Lamie saw him coming, roused the three-year-old with hand and heel, and prepared to put up a fight until the last gasp.

Nearer and yet nearer came The Winner, until his head was at Voter's shoulder; then Lamie's guardian angel must have whisperad to the lad, for as he started to draw his whip, he put it down again, and went to work with reducible vigor, hand riding and kicking, until even those who know him best were amassed. Voter bravely held his own, and try as Sloane might The Winner could not close that few feet, and Voter was first past the post by a neck. Casseopia was third, two lengths eway, with Hastings fourth.

That's how Voter won the Metropolitan Handicap of 1897. Naturally, the owner, jockey, and trainer of Voter came in for a host of congratulations. Voter was a two-year-old of high class last year. He was heed by his owner in England, but foaled in this country, and did not appear until the season had been pretty well advanced. He was easily the pick of the Keene two-year-olds in 1896, and it is a pity that he is not in the cont of good size, having an unusual amount of power behind the saddle. He was ably prepared for his race by the colored trainer, Thomas Green.

An even dozen two-year-olds were named for the Juvenile Stakes, the Mesars, Morris, Thompson, and McCafferty each sending two to the post. The Morris pair, Cherry Picker and Varus coupled, were favorite in the speculation, with the Brookdale pair, Reprisal and Blarneystone. Belmont's Firearm, Gideon's Frohman, and Dwyer's Handball next in demand. Firearm was the best looking of the lot, although Varus was a magnificent young glant. and Blarneystone would attract attention anywhere. Handball was very neat, as was Reprisal, the halt-brother to Requiltal, but both facked size. They were on the whole, however, a superb looking lot, and it was a relief to see them after the scrubs which showed at Bennings and Aqueduct. Firearm, a son of Rayon d'Or, and that wonderfully speedy mare. Fidos, by imported The Ill Used, is a big edition of his dam. When Doggett galloyed him to the post the colt was much adapted Jockey Reliff was the observed of all. It was the young man's first appearance since his English campaign, and as he rode up the stretch, stirrups and rein very long, body straight, and elbows close to the side, with he was as unlike the Lester Relif of old as anybody could possibly be. Yet he sat his horse easily and gracefully. Some of our bove can copy his style with profit.

The youngsters behaved well at the post and a fair start was made without much delay. Firearm rushed to the front, closely pressed by Frohman, George Keene, Handball, and Varus, They had things all their own way, and finished in a bunch, Firearm getting the verdict by a good neck and shoulders, while Frohman beat Varus a short head. Handball was fourth only a head away. There were declarations to win with Oherry Picker and Reprisal, and many thought that Littlefield could have won with Varus had away. POUGHEERPSIE, May 8 .- John Myers is in the county jail, charged with assault in the second degree for holding up Fred Bostwick on Thursday with a double-barrelled shotgun, loaded with buckshot, and threatening to shoot his head off.

The hold-up occurred in front of Myers's home, near Halcyon Lake, in Pine Plains. Mr. Bostwick's friends believe that he is alive to-day because he had the courage to look down the muz-zle of the gun without flinching and tell the angry man that he would be a fool to shoot. This had such a cooling effect on Myers that he lowered the gun, and Mr. Bostwick drove off un harmed. Later he swore out a warrant, and Myers was arrested.

Myers's grudge against Mr. Bostwick is that the latter witnessed the will of his mother, Mrs. Frances Myers, who died last Saturday and cut him off without a penny, leaving all her property to her daughter, Miss May Myers. Mr. Bostwick had just called on Miss Myers when her brother held him up. The Bostwick and Myers families are among the oldest in Pine Plains. Mr. Bostwick has filled the office of cashler of the Stissing Bank and was appointed National Bank Examiner by President Harrison. Myers, when arraigned before Recorder Odell, said he was sorry for what he had done and wished he was dead.

Both ran toward the centre of the street, but Bachman succeeded in reaching a point of interception first. He secured a grip on the reins, but was jerked forward and thrown violently to the ground, the wheels passing over his right ankle. Bachman sustained a double fracture of the right arm below the elbow and a contusion of the ankle. He was taken to Flower Hospital.

Upon hearing of the accident, Mr. Cromble voluntarily appeared at the Fifty-first street station and gave ball. The horse was captured on Madison avenue, between Fifty-fourth and Fifth-fith streets, where it had fallen from exhaustion.

This led to another question as to whether or not he would accept the nomination if he were the unanimous choice of all the anti-Tammany elements. The Mayor's answer to this was his statement regarding the hard work he had performed as Mayor, and his willingness to lay down the cares of office at the end of the year.

Of the attitude of the Citizens' Union the Mayor said:

"The men in that movement are honest, capable and cool-headed, so far as I know them. They all believe in good government for this city and they are not going to do anything to injure that cause. They are not going to commit hara-kirl in a cause for which we have all worked so hard. Without any advice from Senator Platt or from me, the leaders of that movement are not going to act rashly. They are not going to name an independent ticket. The ticket must be a Kepublican one, nominated or indorsed by the Republican party, to win, and I am confident that all the men interested in good government will get together. We all realize that the officers elected this year are to hood office for four years, and no man wants to endanger what we have gained in the way of good government."

The Mayor, it is said, has a notion that his status with the organization would have been more agreeable and he would have been more agreeable and he would have been subjected to less adverse criticism on the part of the machine leaders had the men who were sent to treat with him on behalf of the organization in the first instance been other than Jacob M. Patterson and Charles H. Murray. These men tall this is what the Mayor's friends say assumed to demand certain appointments on behalf of the organization.

The only Cit of consequence who could be found in town yesterday who would comment on Senator Platt's declaration of the position of the Republican organization was James C. Carter, Mr. Carter said: "I am not used to taking political advice from Thomas C. Platt."

President Edward Lauterbach of the Republi-can County Committee said (not at the behest of Mr. Hillis):

em County Committee said not at the behest of Mr. Hillis):

"S-nator Platt states the political situation in Greater New York very clearly and foreibly. He is in entire accord with the views which have been expressed by all the Republican district leaders. The Republican organization will doubtless deem it its duty to its constituents to make Republican nominations. It does not underestimate the importance of the support of its candidates by those who are independent in their politics. Senator Platt sets forth the duty of the organization in this regard, and it will be fully performed. The necessity of this course is apparent. The advantages which will accrue from having the city. State and national administrations in accord; Tammany's renewed confession of Bryanism made by its authorized mouthplee last night—everything—points to the necessity of tunion to present victory for the forces of disorder. FREE TRADE LEADERS AT ODDS. Trouble in the New England League Over the Boston, May 8.-The first really serious trouble that the New England Free Trade League has ever had came to-night at the annual meeting, when there were two candidates for the Presidency, Henry W. Lamb and Harvey N. Shepard, Mr. Lamb has been President for three years and Mr. Shepard has been Chairman of the Executive Committee. Mr. Shepard was in favor with the Committee. Mr. Shepard was in favor with the Nomination Committee, but Mr. Lamb's friends put in some work, and, after a hot discussion, Mr. Lamb was elected by a vote of 69 to 43.

The leader of the opposition, Samuel W. Mendum, was a free-silver man last fall, and Mr. Lamb's friends say that most of the opposition came from that element of the party. Mr. Mendum, on the other hand, says that Mr. Lamb's policy has not been sufficiently aggressive.

Police Commissioner Welles instructed the Police Captains of Brooklyn yesterday that all saloons must be closed from Saturday midnight intil 5 o'clock Monday morning, but that hotel bars would be allowed to remain open until 1 o'clock Sunday morning. He also said that "fake" hotels would not be tolerated. He called the Captains' attention to the space allowed for sleeping apartments. If there were any doubt as to the size of the rooms proper persons would be instructed to take measurements. Hotels that have the necessary number of rooms of the proper size would not be interfered with, but proper size would not be interfered with, but drinks could be served in them only with meals. A sandwich, he said, would be considered a meal. As a result of this definition of a meal beer will be sold freely on Coney Island to-day. As to booths in barrooms Police Superintendent McKelvey said that if the entire interior of a booth was visible to any person who entered the barroom the booth was unobjectionable. As to all-night licenses Commissioner Welles said they would hold good for six nights in the week, but that no place with such a license could remain open during the prohibited hours, from Saturday midnight until b o'clock Sunday morning.

to-day for the repose of the souls of the victims of the Charity Bazaar fire were completed last night. The main entrance to the edifice was draped with a huge pall spangled with silver and edged with erfaine, reaching to the ground. The inside decorations were of the same design as those used at the funeral of President Carnot. The great square in front of the cathedral was packed at an early hour this morning.

The funeral services were held in the Cathedral at noon to-day. The Duke of Leuchtenberg was present as the representative of the Czar and the German Emperor was represented by the Prince and Princess Radziwill. The Cathedral was crowded with Ministers, diplomats, and other persons of prominence.

In the middle of the chancel stood a catafaloue, upon which were placed coffus containing the bodies of the Contesse de Vallin and Madame Julian. The catafaloue was surrounded by candelabra holding green lights, the effect of which in the darkened Cathedral was extremely weird.

The services were somewhat long, but very impressive. Father Ollivier delivered a brief allocution upon the text, "Happy are those who pass their lives in doing good," after which M. Barthou, Minister of the Interior, pronounced a solemn oration. The Government sent a magnificent wreath, which was conspicuous among the number of others for its beauty and appropriateness.

London, May 8.—A requiem mass for the repose of the souls of the victims of the Paris fire was celebrated in the chapel of the French Embassy to-day. spatch contained no particulars, but merely notified Mr. de Comeau that his sister Mario perished in the catastrophe, and asked him to inform his aister Yolande here.

Miss Yolande de Comeau, as she is known in her family, is a nun, one of the Sisters of St. Francis, who conduct the Mission of the Immaculate Virgin in Lafayette place and a branch of the institution at Mount Loretto, Staten Island. She is known in the sisterhood as Sister Ann. She is stationed at Mount Loretto, Staten Island. She is known in the sisterhood as Sister Ann. She is stationed at Mount Loretto, where, out of her private means, she established a department for the especial care of blind and deaf waifs.

Miss Marie de Comeau also devoted her life to charitable work, her brother said. She had lived in Paris since the death of their father, Louis de Comeau, twelve years ago. Louis de Comeau was for many yesses identified with the old banking house of De Rham & Co. of New York. The family lived on Staten Island. Louis de Comeau retired from business because of old age shortly before his death. Miss Marie de Comeau while living here exerted herself in behalf of charitable enterprises, and she continued the work when she went to France.

He had come to England, he said, a friend of the British people, and he left England a stronger friend than when he came. Mr. Bayard said he wished to say, and he desired that the statement should reach the ears and heart of every intelligent man on either side of the Atlantic that during his four years of service in England no word of hostility, dislike, or disrespect to him or his country had been known to him, but, on the contrary, on every hand there was also the most friendly disposition toward peace, good fellowship, and a sincere understanding with those he was glad to call their kindred beyond the sons. He had done his best, he said, to leave the relations of both countries upon such a basis of amity that no trifling cause could affect them.

DUEL WITH SWORDS IN VIENNA. In Spite of His Wound, Herr Wolff Will Sond Out Three More Challenges.

Special Cubic Despatch to The Sun.
Vienna' May 8.—A duel with swords was fought this morning between Herr Wolff, a German member of the Austrian House of Repsentatives, and M. Horica, a Casch member of the same body, in which both were wounded. The duel grew out of the violent scenes which have occurred in the House between the Germans and Csechs, in which personalities were freely indulged in.

Herr Wolff will send seconds with challenges to three other Czech members for having insulted him in the course of his delivery of a violent anti-Czech speech.

Vellott quarrelled with his father and his allowance was cut off. In a fit of anger the young swell told some of his friends he was going West to become a cowboy. Those who knew him laughed, but he was in carnest. Two days later he started West without giving his parents or his flance good-by. His father made repeated endeavors to find him. He traced him as far west as Lampassa, Tex., but as often as he tried to communicate with his son, he would learn that he had gone to some other Texas town.

On Wednesday a letter, signed by George W. Yellott, was received at the City Hospital. The letter said that the writer had been informed that his son, Hichard, had been ill in Texas and had started to St. Louis. He asked, if the young man should apply for admission to the hospital, that he be told that his father was willing to care for him at home and would send him money to pay for his transportation. There was a post-script which read:

Surgeon Sutphen, who came with the ambulance, said it looked as if the man had died of heart disease.

The body was removed to the police station, and word was sent to the home of Mr. McCord at 145 West Seventy-seventh street. Dr. W. C. Campbell of 42 West Forty-ninth street, the family physician, went to the station with a brother of the dead i. an. He said that Mr. McCord had died of apoplexy. His certificate to that effect was rejected, however, by the Board of Health, and word was sent to the Coroner to take charge of the case. On a Coroner's permit the body was removed to the home.

The dead man was very stout, and weighed over 200 bounds. He was a member of the grain firm of Heary D. McCord & Sons, 92 Broad street, of which President McCord of the Produce Exchange is the head. The other member of the firm is his younger brother, William M. McCord. Henry W. McCord, like his father and brother, was a member of the Produce Exchange, having been admitted nearly fifteen years ago, he was 50 years of age, and hat been married only a few years. Besides a widow he leaves one child. Two sisters also survive him.

President McCord received word of the death at his summer home at Sing Sing. He was out fishing when the despatch arrived, but as soon as he got it he at once came to town.

THE NASHVILLE'S TRIAL Start of the Gunbont from Newport News for the New London Course

NEWFORT NEWS, Va., May 8.-The new gun boat Nashville, the third built by the Newport News Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Company for the Government, steamed away from her moor ings at the company's yard at S o'clock this afternoon for New London, Conn., where she will have her official trial trip on May 12. The Nashville is a much more costly craft than either the Wilmington or Helena, and the contract speed called for is one knot greater than that required of them. The contract requires fourteen knots.

At a preliminary trial she made an average of over sixteen knots. The Nashville sailed in charge of a crew of picked men under the command of the shipyard officials.

Capt. B. F. Hall was in command, Robert E. Stocker chief engineer, and Capt. Hirdsell of New York first officer. Sommers N. Smith, general superintendent at the shipbuilding yard here, accompanied by George Clark, Superintendent of Coinstruction, will leave for New London by rail to-morrow to supervise the speed test.

INJUNCTION AGAINST STRIKEDS. The United States Court Puts a Stop to Threat

CLEVELAND, May 8 .- The United States Oircult Court, through Judge Sage, to-day enjoined the strikers of the Consolidated Steel Company from interfering with the non-union men em ployed in the works. Judge Sage maintained that the proof was conclusive that violence had been done to the men in the employ of the company; that if the persons named as defendants pany; that if the persons named as defendants to the suit were not actually engaged in that violence, they were at least closely associated with the mobs and were their ruling spirits.

Further he maintained that the Rod Mill Workers' Union was the fountain head of the trouble, for if it did not counsel violence, it as least kept agents about the property of the company whose duty it was to keep a close surreillance upon all who went in and came out of it, and also upon all that was being done in and about the works. It was clear, he maintained, that the defendants had materially interfered with the lawful rights of the company and the men in their employ.

The Judge called attention to the fact that the company had been operating its plant without the slightest molestation since the court gave a temporary restraining order. During the reading of the decision the courtroom was crowded with attorneys, strikers, and others. PRINCE LUIGI AND MT. ST. ELIAS.

Interesting Excavations Made by the Govern NEW ORLEANS, May 8.-In the excavations now being made at Plaquemine by the United States Government to construct the Government locks on Bayon Plaquemine Major Oning has discovered, twenty feet below the surface of the present soil and slightly below the sea level, a stratum of old tree stumps, showing that the level of the ground had at one time been there. Another layer of stumps was encountered at a depth of sixteen feet below the Gulf level, condepth of sixteen feet below the Guif level, con-firming the theory previously advanced by Major Quinn that the Mississippi Valley is gradually sinking. Although no carthquake shocks have ever been noticed at Plaquemine, Major Quinn is satisfied from his examination that this sinking of the soil is largely due to carthquakes. It was impossible for him to de-termine from the tree stumps when this forest existed. Plaquemine is 215 miles from the Gulf by way of the Mississippi River.
